36 – AMANGIRI HOTEL, UTAH

Located in a secluded valley in Utah's majestic Canyon Point, this 34-suite hotel commands views of the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument. Here, terrace fires are lit against the evening desert chill, while delicate seasonal dishes come fresh from the restaurant's wood-fired oven. The Grand Canyon, Colorado River and Zion National Park are all within striking distance, but the more sedentary will prefer to retreat to the immaculate 25,000 sq ft spa, where a Watsu pool will help wash away the day's dusty adventures.

37 – BLACKMAN CRUZ STORE, LA

Design emporium Blackman Cruz is where you go for distinctive alternatives to contemporary minimalism. With an overall look that is wilfully obscure and discreetly subversive for such a sun-drenched city, the closest it gets to recognisable modernism is Fritz Hansen's 'Seagull' chair or a glass table by Pierre Cardin. Unique designs by Jocko Johnson and Don Shoemaker complement the store's own product line. BC Workshop, and London interiors specialist, Clarke & Reilly, will be given a dedicated area in December.

38 – GAS STATION COFFEE
 In an age of extreme caffeine connoisseurship, we're mounting a defence of the tepid swill served in lurid polystyrene pails at gas stations and convenience stores across the US. After all, it's what the 17 retractable coffee-cup holders that are a prerequisite in any American car were made for.

39 – BEST MADE COMPANY

Thanks to outdoorsman and committed environmentalist Graeme Cameron and NYC art director Peter Buchanan-Smith, you can now own an axe that leans proudly in the most contemporary of backwoods retreats. Each handmade axe (page 031) is polished and painted in a New Jersey workshop.

40 – HOT HAIRCARE, BOSTON

Boston has become an unlikely hotbed of hair innovation. Living Proof's No Frizz products (page 031) use a brand-new molecule; Umi Products stand up to the creative demands of session styling; and Elan Sassoon will launch pH-friendly cashmere keratin-based products in 2010.
